The Suffolk Project – Richard Allenby-Pratt

"The Suffolk Project is a study of this East Anglian County, with a particular interest in the rural landscape and its people, a kind of 'deep-mapping' of Suffolk. Initially inspired by the work of Suffolk writers such as Adrian Bell, George Ewart Evans and Ronald Blythe, my aim is to create an archive of authentic Suffolk imagery and stories and seek out and record the unique character of the county, its people and industries." Richard Allenby-Pratt

Richard's talk will be followed by time for your questions and thoughts and then a time to chat with a cuppa and a piece of cake.

All Guests are very welcome so please encourage friends and family. Guests £7
